Design Tips:

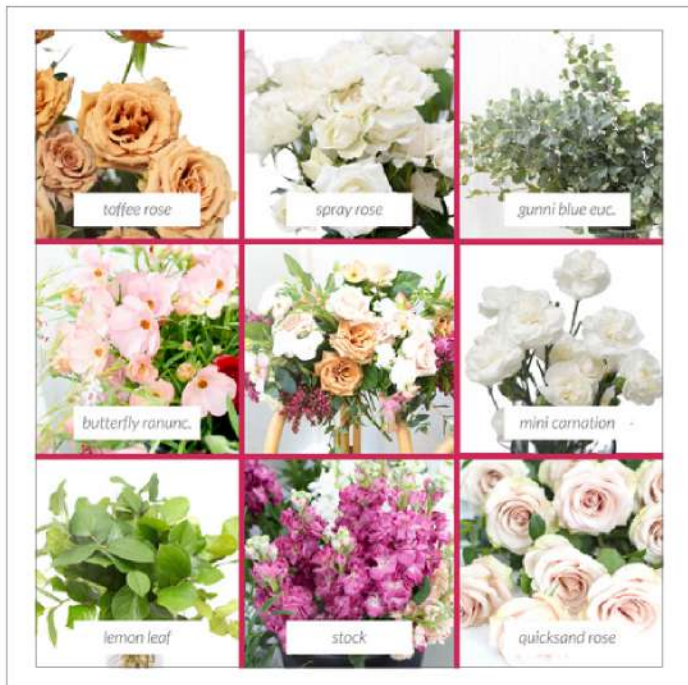

Full Disclosure. We usually front-load large arrangements for the ceremony which means we put the majority of the flowers in the front because no one usually sees the back. Since they typically face one direction at the ceremony and don't need much going on in the back, let's put your money where people are going to see it. Now they aren't bare but just not as full as the front. Think of it as a reverse mullet.

Using more greenery cuts down on the amount of flowers you need to use thus saving you money! (Imagine me making it rain with your savings!) Greenery, by volume, is less expensive than flowers, even the more affordable flowers. You get a lot of bang for your buck so if you want more grand arrangements but are a little tight on budget, use more greenery!

RE-USE Ceremony items!!! Delegate someone to move arrangements from your ceremony to a spot at the reception. They are statement pieces and we don't want you to pay for and make them to only be used for 30 minutes (or however long your ceremony is). We like to flank a sweetheart table, place them at the entry, or photo booth, where-ever, just promise me you'll re-use them!!!

Re-purpose those Bridesmaids Bouquets! I can't tell you how many times as a florist I go to clean up a wedding and there are 4-5 bridesmaids bouquets just laying on the tables. Have vases ready to go on the tables at your reception and give your head BM (or your Aunt Karen) the task of rounding those bad boys up and putting them on the designated tables.

FLOWER RECIPES

EXAMPLE BOUQUET RECIPE

FLOWER RECIPES:

We will give you a flower recipe for each bouquet, centerpiece, arrangement etc. you need. Think of a flower recipe the way you would a cooking recipe. It gives you all the ingredients, and the quantities you need of those ingredients, so you can make an amazing soufflé... or jello depending on your skill level. Either way, all you have to do is follow the recipe and voila, magic food appears! Same concept, no calories. Below is a sample recipe for a Bridal Bouquet:

We will also calculate the stem count from the recipes and generate your floral order. We are a one stop shop and will do all the guesswork for you! (no guessing on our end. We know what we're doing 😊)
